

TIER 1: Global Academic & Policy Heavyweights

1. Prof. Dr. Nigel South

Justification: He is the undisputed top draw for academic visibility. A Lifetime Achievement Award winner from the American Society of Criminology, his metrics are exceptional (H-index: 56; i10-index: 174). He holds editorial board positions in major international journals, meaning his network is vast. Highlighting him signals to the global academic community that your university hosts the absolute top tier of criminological thought leaders.

2. Prof. Dr. Avi Brisman

Justification: Dr. Brisman brings massive scholarly visibility. With over 5,600 citations, an H-index of 40, and an i10-index of 104, his research footprint is gigantic. Winning the "Critical Criminologist of the Year" award further cements his status. Highlighting him positions your university at the forefront of contemporary, globally relevant discussions like Green and Cultural Criminology.

3. Prof. Dr. Gorazd Meško

Justification: He possesses the highest raw citation count in the lineup (6,440) and a highly impressive H-index of 35. As the International Ambassador of the British Society of Criminology and a managing editor, he acts as a global bridge between UK/European criminology networks. Highlighting him strengthens your university's visibility in European research grant circles (e.g., Horizon Europe).

4. Prof. Dr. Gema Varona Martínez

Justification: While her citation metrics are lower than the top three, her positional impact is immense. As the President of the World Society of Victimology, she is a global figurehead. Because this conference includes "Victimology" in its title, having the President of the world's leading victimology society is a massive branding win. Highlighting her will attract victimology scholars, NGOs, and policy makers globally.

TIER 2: High-Impact Innovators & Policy Connectors

5. Dr. Fernanda Fonseca Rosenblatt

Justification: Despite missing Google Scholar metrics in the document, her profile carries immense international brand value. She is affiliated with the University of Oxford and collaborates with the United Nations and UNODC. For a university wanting international visibility, highlighting a speaker with UN and Oxford ties projects an image of global policy relevance and elite institutional networking.

6. Prof. Dr. Daniel Briggs

Justification: A highly cited researcher (nearly 3,000 citations, H-index: 31) with a strong focus on marginalized groups and contemporary crises (Covid-19, Ukrainian refugees). His affiliation with Northumbria University (Times Higher Education University of the Year 2022) adds prestige. He is highly cited recently (1,149 citations since 2021), showing he is a current, active powerhouse in the field.

7. Prof. Dr. Victoria Canning

Justification: She offers excellent "crossover" visibility. Not only does she have strong recent citations (1,144 since 2021), but she also won the British Society of Criminology Book Prize and consulted on a BAFTA-winning BBC series. Highlighting her demonstrates that your university's academics don't just write papers—they impact mainstream media and public discourse on human rights.

8. Prof. Dr. James Treadwell

Justification: A solid, established academic with nearly 2,000 citations and an H-index of 22. As an Executive Member of the British Society of Criminology, his inclusion highlights your university's integration into the core infrastructure of UK criminology.

TIER 3: Emerging Voices & Specialized Practitioners

9. Dr. Kwan-Lamar Blount-Hill

Justification: Affiliated with Arizona State University (#1 Most Innovative School in the U.S.), he brings a fresh, data-driven perspective. His recent citation surge (626 of his 706 total citations are since 2021) indicates he is a rising star. Highlighting him shows your conference is tracking the future of data analytics and diversity in criminology.

10. Dr. Tammy Ayres

Justification: A solid interdisciplinary researcher with nearly 850 citations. Her work bridging drugs, terrorism, and LGBT mental health aligns perfectly with modern, inclusive university values. She is a strong, reliable academic voice that adds depth to the conference.

11. Dr Vineet Kapoor IPS

Justification: As an IPS (Indian Police Service) officer and academic at NLU Delhi, he brings a vital Global South and practitioner perspective. While his academic metrics aren't listed, highlighting him shows your university values global diversity and the intersection of academic theory and on-the-ground policing in the world's largest democracy.

12. Prof. Ruwan Uduwera-Perera

Justification: Similar to Dr. Kapoor, he is a practitioner-academic (former British police officer, international trainer). Highlighting him attracts an audience of policing professionals and demonstrates the university's commitment to "praxis" (applied research). However, lacking academic metrics, his visibility draw is largely limited to law enforcement networks.

TIER 4: Early Career & Niche Scholars

13. Dr Andrea Giovannetti

Justification: As an Assistant Professor focusing on quantitative/computational criminology, she represents the future of the discipline. Her metrics are early-stage (H-index: 4), but her Australian affiliation adds geographic diversity.

14. Prof. Ulf Christian Eiras Nordenstahl

Justification: His focus on indigenous law and mediation is incredibly important and niche, but his metrics (H-index: 4, 112 total citations) and institutional reach are low. He will be highly visible to a very specific sub-field, but not broadly to the international education sector.

15. Mr. Liam Miles

Justification: As a Lecturer and PhD candidate, he is the most junior academic on the panel. His metrics are naturally at the beginning stages (H-index: 1). While his work on the cost-of-living crisis is timely, he does not yet carry the weight to drive international visibility for the university.

Strategic Recommendation:

To maximize international visibility, your marketing should lead with "Featuring the President of the World Society of Victimology (Prof. Varona Martínez) and Lifetime Achievement Award-winning Criminologists (Prof. South & Prof. Brisman)." This trifecta of institutional leadership, historical prestige, and massive citation impact will immediately catch the attention of international researchers, funding bodies, and prospective students looking for a world-class faculty environment.
